Both the town and the Department of Natural Resources have expressed satisfaction with regional subdivision plans from Grege Development Corp. which include use of watershed lands adjacent to Fish Brook. Objections were heard earlier this year at a hearing held under provisions of the Hatch Act, new legislation for protection of wetlands.

George Kurilko, 28, is the consultant to the planning board, representing Adams, Ward & Oppermann, Gordon, who was previously assigned to the Andover board, has been another AH&O assignment.

The Selectmen drew the following names for jury duty in Salem: 13; Emily W. Homsey, 27 High Main Rd.; Louis J. Bravacos, 59 Lowell St.; and Joseph F. Barton, Florence St.

Grants Take Haiti Posts

Glen W. Grant and his wife Jane will leave next month to begin their second tour of duty abroad on a community development assignment.

The Osgood Street residents will work with the Albert Schweitzer Hospital in Haiti, some 90 miles from the capital city of Port-au-Prince. They returned some months ago from a two-year stint with the Peace Corps which took them to Honduras for similar work. Grant will operate a carpenter shop in Haiti, a pottery shop and also supervise instruction in weaving and needlework in an effort to stimulate the economy of this remote area.

If the community can become more productive, Grant explains, it will mean better nutrition for a population hard hit by food shortages.

The area to be served has a population of about 3000. Grant, an experienced cabinetmaker, will put as many of them to work as possible.

Mrs. Grant, a teacher, will likely undertake some education of the people involved in the project, Grant reports.

Manager Lifts Water Ban; Issues Summer Use Rules

SELECTMAN STEWART

Stewart Candidate

William Stewart, chairman of the Andover Board of Selectmen today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for 12th district representative to the Massachusetts legislature.

An Andover native, Stewart is in his third term as a selectman. He was named chairman last March.

The local official is a partner in the cost and management consulting firm of Stewart & Thurston, headquartered in Andover. Prior to formation of this company in 1948, he was associated with American Woolen Co. He first worked with the textile firm's production and industrial engineering department but was assigned in 1945 as superintendent of the Kennebec Mill, Fairfield, Maine. Stewart took a leave from his firm in 1951 to serve as a consultant to the U. S. Office of Price Stabilization, first in Washington and later as head of the OPS accounting division in England Newland.

He is a graduate of Lowell Technological Institute.

Brook Open House

At 1 p.m. Saturday the Town of Andover will dedicate its new Fish Brook dam and pumping station. The public is invited to attend the open house to hear explanations of the facility's operation.

The station is located along side the Merrimack. The best approach to Fish Brook is over Rt. 93 to River Rd. and along River Rd. to Brundrett Ave. The road to the station winds around a farm house to the bank of the river.

Use Schedule Established

Town Manager Richard Bowen issued today a directive lifting the water ban in Andover, but establishing fixed patterns for use to prevent a sudden and dangerous draw down at Haggett's Pond.

Plans for controlled usage have been under consideration by the manager and Water Supt. Donald C. Bassett since it became evident some weeks ago that it might be possible, with the addition of Fish Brook water, to bring the town's major reservoir to near normal levels for this time of year.

Unlimited use is to be permitted under the new regulations but the rules have been set up to stagger usage on the East and West sides of town. And permits will be issued for the filling of pools to spread the demand.

The complete removal of water restrictions or their reimposition will depend upon two factors, the manager said - the elements and the water user. "We cannot control the elements, but each of us is fully capable of exercising good judgment in the use of water," Bowen stated. He added: "The town is well on its way toward solving permanently its periodic problem of water shortage and with everybody's help, this will come soon."

In his statement, Manager Bowen commented on the data which led to the decision to lift the year-old ban. The decision, he said, was (Continued on Page Three)

New Concepts In Education Will Be Tried

The Andover school department will encourage its teachers to involve themselves in courses, workshops etc. through which they may learn more about theories and practices relating to team teaching and ungraded organization.

And in-service programs will be planned for the next term to give the professional staff background in these two concepts plus that of departmentalization as a method of educational organization.

The New Water Rules

1. Unlimited use of water, except for the filling of swimming pools, will be permitted on the East side of the Boston & Maine Railroad tracks on EVEN numbered days of the month and on the West side of the tracks on ODD numbered days. The purpose of this regulation is to stabilize water consumption and not overtax the pumping facilities.

2. Swimming pools may be filled only after a permit is obtained from the Andover Water Department at Town Hall and shall be undertaken in accordance with instructions given by the water superintendent, Donald C. Bassett. This regulation is also designed to stabilize demand.

3. Judicious use of water must be observed. The indiscriminate running of water down gutters and roadways because of failure to supervise its use will not be tolerated.

Teaching Techniques Studied

(A Townsman News Feature)

In a report filled with conditional clauses, a committee of educators and non-professionals reported here this week that it neither embraces nor rejects the idea of reorganization of the Andover school system for broad use of ungraded classrooms and team teaching techniques.

Responding to a request from the School Committee, the study group made only one "definitive" recommendation: "extensive study and limited experimentation are necessary before policy decisions can be wisely made."

"Professional and community understanding of organizational change is essential," said the committee, "to the success of any innovation that may eventually be initiated."

What sort of innovations are they talking about? There are a variety of possibilities, for the terms "team teaching" and "ungraded organization" refer to any number of approaches to utilizing professional talent and providing a framework for education which encourages each student to realize his own fullest classroom potential.

Team teaching and ungraded organization, says the report, differ in emphasis: team teaching concentrates primarily on efficient use of teacher time; ungradedness is based on a theory of pupil growth and progress.

Quoting from an expert in the field, the Andover study committee defines team teaching as "a type of instructional organization . . . in which two or more teachers are given responsibility, working together, for all or a significant part of the instruction of the same group of students."

In an ungraded system, regardless of whether he is team taught or instructed by a single teacher, the pupil competes with himself. Conventional grade barriers are removed so that the student's achievement can be measured against his own potential instead of arbitrarily compared with that of his classmates.

Under such a setup, a pupil may do classwork at one grade level in his best subjects and at another in those for which he has least aptitude.

Team teaching, the report says, introduces several significant alterations in the self-contained classroom pattern: the teacher's autonomy is exchanged for close cooperation and an opportunity to influence other teachers; various groupings for various instructional purposes - from large group lectures to small group discussions - is common; specialization is brought "into a setting intentionally hospitable to the generalist in keeping with team teaching function into various skills, not professional personnel, such as clerical aides, are often included in the team to perform non-professional but necessary functions in the process of teacher supervision changes because teachers influence and help each other in many ways.

The ungraded concept brings classroom changes too, but these are related to the most effective way of taking into account the ability differences that have been shown to exist within individual students.

In an ungraded school, the report says the six elementary grades are usually organized into a primary (6, 7 and 8 year olds) and intermediate (9, 10 and 11 year olds) units. A child may take more than six years to complete the units, but seldom takes less, according to the study committee. Such a set up, bright children get extra enrichment and progress work within each unit.

The keynote of the ungraded structure, is flexibility.

The report continues: "The relationship between team teaching and ungraded structure can be puzzling. Clearly they have in common a concern for adapting instruction to individual pupils with their varying backgrounds, abilities and rates of growth. Both forms of organization provide a framework for flexible grouping. Both form a setting for increased communication between teachers while the teachers in an ungraded primary are not called a team they frequently consult together and often hold joint parent conferences.

"Neither form of organization saves money. Teaching teams need time to plan and co-ordinate their activities; ungraded schools may also have a relatively low pupil-teacher ratio so that skill groups will not grow too large as children move from group to group, and that remedial or transitional instruction can be provided; buildings must contain flexible space.

Oil Prices Are Dropping

The New England Council, which started this week that relaxed its oil restrictions on residual oil prices are already resulting in savings in New England.

"The low barge price in New York on May 18, showed a drop of a barrel," said Gardner, Council executive vice president. "This shows some relief to both the removal of residual oil restrictions and seasonal changes. Prices can be expected to fluctuate as they did before controls were instituted. Another example," said Gardner, "reports published by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in recent bid openings for 1966-67 heating season show price reductions of six percent. Low bids received last year, 'These low bids,' said Gardner, 'are in spite of the fact that heating costs have increased in the last 12 months.'"

Typical of the savings, continued NEC Executive, were 13.8 cents a barrel to Walpole State Prison, 15 cents a barrel to the State Hospital in North Grafton and 13 cents a barrel to the Chestnut Hill station of the Metropolitan District Commission.

C. Expands Night School

The announcement of two bachelor's degree programs for Merrimack College's part-time divisions has been made by the director of the division, Professor Thomas P. Hogan.

Beginning in September of this year, evening students will be able to pursue a bachelor of business administration degree or a bachelor of industrial engineering degree. The degree programs will be in addition to the current associate-degree program, not requirements. Students desiring the associate degree will have the option of business administration, electrical engineering, or to receive course credit, students must present evidence of school graduation. Candidates for the associate's degree must, in addition, present four entrance exams in high school English, two in mathematics and ten others. A limited number of units in business studies, Engineering student must present at least one unit in science.

Candidates for the bachelor's degree will normally be admitted after the completion of an appropriate associate's degree or equivalent with a minimum quality point average of 2.0 on the Merrimack scale.

The college advises interested students to schedule early appointments for personal interviews with Prof. Hogan's office.

Nickel stainless steel is fast becoming one of the world's most widely used architectural materials—particularly for modern skyscrapers. ## WATER BAN

"based upon these facts and not pure emotion nor political expediency." The manager had been under considerable pressure from some residents and from Selectman Sidney P. White to eliminate the ban.

He restated his position Monday when he told Mr. White in a heated conversation that the responsibility for a judgment on the water situation was his and that he had to take a lot more than consumer use into consideration in making that judgment. He referred specifically to the need for keeping pressure adequate through this summer for fire protection, and mentioned that there were times last summer when the town would have been hard pressed to fight a major fire in some sections of town.

In today's statement, Bowen said:

"Water supply conditions have improved sufficiently within the last month to warrant a careful reexamination of the water-use restrictions which have been in effect since July of 1965. The projections which were made in the undertaking of the Fish Brook water project have been met. Precipitation thus far in 1966, though somewhat below normal, has none the less been of sufficient quantity to have augmented our major source at Haggett's Pond.

"The pond, by virtue of this precipitation and the pumping of nearly 100 million gallons of water from Fish Brook, has been brought up to within approximately two feet of being full. This brings it above the level for the same period in 1965. It remains, nevertheless, some two feet lower than would be normal for this time of the year. It is also fair to assume that the use restrictions which have been observed by most townspeople have contributed materially to the establishment of a reasonably safe water supply level."

Bowen added a warning to residents that for approximately 10 days after today, the 26th, discoloration of water will be probable. "This will result because of the turbulence generated by expected heavy water use. The water department will not be able to do anything about it. It will clear itself," he said.

PA Boys Learn Self Reliance

Strange sights have confronted residents of Andover and surrounding areas during the past few months.

One alarmed motorist recently stopped his car on Main Street in front of the Phillips Academy bell tower to come to the assistance of a man who was apparently about to commit suicide by leaping from the top of the tower.

An anxious resident of Dascomb Road reported to the police that boys wearing masks had been dumped from a car and had then disappeared into the woods as the car sped off.

And then several weeks ago late on a Saturday night, individuals were observed surreptitiously crouching in the bushes outside of Evans Hall on the Academy campus and then dashing for the basement entrance.

Crime wave in Andover? Unidentified flying objects landing?

Unfortunately for thrill seekers - and happily for a worried public - these incidents can be traced to a very legitimate source; the Phillips Academy Search and Rescue Program, a carefully supervised operation under the direction of members of the PA faculty.

Contrary to appearances, this program is not training teenage secret agents but is rather educating groups of twenty lower and upper middle (10th and 11th grade) in the techniques of map and compass work as well as in the more spectacular art of cliff rescue work. What passing motorists observed on the bell tower was a team of these boys lowering a supposedly injured victim down to the ground by use of cliff rappelling techniques. The "victim" in this case was a very healthy and hefty mathematics instructor who touched ground intact.

The Search and Rescue Program was started at the Academy two years ago to learn how the principles of the Outward Bound Schools might be used within the framework of a normal school year and curriculum. Outward Bound Inc. with national headquarters at 16 School St., presently operates three summer schools, in Colorado, Minnesota, and Maine with a fourth scheduled to open this summer in Oregon. These schools offer a series of three and one-half week sessions which help young men to discover and develop their abilities by confronting them with the demands of a seemingly unfriendly physical environment.

The underlying philosophy of Outward Bound, and therefore the PA Search and Rescue Program, is that by matching ingenuity and strength against the obstacles presented by the mountains, wilderness, or sea a boy gains an understanding of his inward strength and thus fresh confidence in his personal resources.

The proponents of this philosophy stress that the true goal is what a boy learns about himself - not merely how agile he becomes in mountain climbing, map work, or existing off of the land.

Phillips Academy has a strong interest in Outward Bound. Headmaster John Kemper is a trustee and O.B. President, Joshua Miner is an Academy housemaster who directs the program while on leave of absence from PA.

Jerome Pieh, history instructor and son of the director of the Minnesota Outward Bound School, is in charge of PA's Search and Rescue program and stresses that he and his staff are trying to teach the boys an attitude toward themselves by means of their assignments with maps, compasses, and rappelling equipment. He has organized the program around several units. Twenty boys are selected by lot from a list of volunteers, and their activities are then carried on during the regular athletic period in the afternoon.

The first unit is cliff rescue which involves a thorough briefing on the use of ropes and equipment, then proceeds to exercises in rappelling down the back of George Washington Hall, and culminates in scaling the bell tower and then lowering a victim down from the top.

Land navigation is the focus of the second unit. Boys learn to use topographical maps and are taught to take different bearings on the compass. Through a variety of exercises on campus, Holt Hill, and around Ponds Pond they learn to locate themselves using these tools. At one point groups of boys are blindfolded and driven to a wooded area near the campus where they are dropped off and told to locate themselves and return as quickly as possible to school. (This is what the Dascomb Road resident witnessed.)

The final phase of the program involving fire rescue and saving is currently underway. May 4 a group went to Topfield where the Civil Defense Disaster Training Center is located. There they used the smoke house to simulate fire evacuation under vividly realistic conditions.

Instructors in the PA program are very pleased with the results as are the students involved. Mrs. Jones, son of PA instructor Mrs. Edward Hammond, finds the program an interesting change from the routine of the competitive sports program. He says the assignments have been difficult but fun.

Another PA day student, Bernard L. Quinlan of 8 Alderbrook Rd., thinks the program is doing a good job in giving the boys an Outward Bound experience within a limited amount of time. The challenge, he claims, is in "doing what you never thought you'd be able to do". "It's where you have to count that counts," he says. "You have to keep up and so you push and push and then you made it. It's great!"

"Great" seems to be the general reaction to the Search and Rescue Program since plans are underway for next year when boys will have their chance to take up the routine of Academy life and learn a great deal about themselves as well.

NEW CONCEPTS

cluded in a resolution drawn and approved by the School Committee Tuesday after it accepted the report of an eight week study of new teaching techniques from a lay-professional committee.

Also listed in the resolution, presented Committeewoman Virginia H. Cole:

- The study of such teaching and organizational methods is to be continued in any ways the school administration and/or the present study committee sees fit.

- Lay personnel shall continue to serve on such study committees as the public needs to learn about differing concepts. Suggested as possible ways to involve laymen - as helpers in planning in-service agendas, securing speakers etc.; participation in programs, at least to the extent of listening; as interested PTA members, perhaps as PTA representatives on study committees; and through programs presented at parent-teacher meetings.

- Approval for continuation and expansion of pilot projects already in progress.

- The start of new projects should be considered for next term. For instance - ideas can be tried at Stowe School; an ungraded primary section might be started; departmentalization tried etc.

- No teacher is to be forced to participate in these projects. Instead, a volunteer plan developed which would permit teachers to change schools in order to participate in programs that interest them.

47% Will Attend Four Year Schools

A total of 73.8% of Andover High School's 287-student graduating class has been accepted for fall terms at U.S. schools and colleges. Last year just 65% of 240 seniors were slated for advanced education.

Of the total accepted for 1966-67 enrollment, 46.7% will attend four-year, degree granting colleges and universities. Twenty-seven percent have been admitted to junior colleges, business schools, technical and professional schools. Another 24 seniors have admissions pending.

Guidance Director William Igoe reports that colleges and universities which the Class of '66 plan to attend cover a wide geographic area representing schools in 18 states, the District of Columbia and Canada.

Igoe said scholarship awards to this year's seniors total $127,740, an increase of $87,000 over last year. Twenty-six students are the recipients. Another $7,894 in scholarship money will be handed out at graduation on June 10.

He added that 33 students in the class plan to work full time, five plan to attend prep schools with a view to entering colleges later and ten will serve in the Armed Forces following graduation.

Still To Be Decided

What Kind Of Town Hall?

(A Townsman News Feature)

The Second of Two Articles

Theoretically, downtown planners will be prepared by July 11 to reveal upon which of four mid-town sites logic dictates the new town hall should be built. And theoretically, since all five members of the Board of Selectmen are on the committee to create a five-year plan for municipal building, this should end the matter.

It may. But then again, it may not. The list of potential locations has been narrowed for "final" selections before, at least twice within the past year. On it now are the town parking lot (or the so-called Shaw property), the Lally-Barnard property overlooking Elm Square, the Musgrove Building site (also on Elm Square) and the block in which the present Town Hall sits.

The Planning Board is backing the Lally site, Selectman Robert Watters is strong for the parking lot and Chairman William Stewart, Selectman Sidney P. White and Manager Richard Bowen seem to be leaning toward selection of the Musgrove block, a move that would involve utilization of Post Office Avenue and the construction of a parking lot on Essex Street for TH employees. If Selectmen Roger Collins and Philip Allen have a current preference, they were not open about it last week at the first conference session which has brought politicians, administrators, a spokesman for the business community and municipal planners together for an overall look at the problem and significance of locations for not only a new town office building, but a fire station and police station as well.

The way things are shaping up, the outcome could be a compromise... some portion of the present town hall block. If this is the answer, the first order of the day will likely be the fire station. So long as the present fire barn sits where it does, the construction possibilities in that area are limited.

But locating the town hall isn't the end of it. This will merely mean that battle lines can be drawn for the next big tussle, the one that appears to be developing over what style of architecture is appropriate for a municipal office building in Andover.

There is strong sentiment here for creating something of a Colonial Williamsburg atmosphere in Andover without paying the price for that shrine's authenticity. (Latest figures on the world famous reconstruction project show that some $70 million in private funds has been spent in discovery and recreation of the past in this historic Virginia community.)

But there is at least some opposition to the idea of a 20th Century township putting up a 19th Century building as its contribution to future history. More could develop if it appears that the town cannot manage anything better than just another pseudo-Colonial structure.

In the end, practicality rather than preference may dictate the style. Town Manager Richard Bowen hinted at this last week when he said that none of the sites under consideration, with the exception of the parking lot, contains enough square footage for a traditional building.

He said specifically: "The idea of a traditional building is very difficult in downtown Andover except on the Shaw property... When you get beyond two stories it becomes a strain to design a Colonial building... you almost have to go up."

The planning board's Harold King disagreed. He said his group opposed the tower approach to an office building on the Lally site that an architect drew for them and considered it a "city man's view." "I don't believe going up suits Andover," he added. He did not suggest what sort of building other than high rise, could be adapted to the dimensions of triangular location his board prefers, but he did explain that plans for use of the Lally property would incorporate the small park that sits in front of the site as part of the town hall development area. This park is directly behind the police box in Elm Square.

Presenting an opposite point of view was Austin Anderson, a representative on the committee from the Chamber of Commerce. "I think we can have charm in town that is not Colonial or American," he said. He went on to say that an architect can express the quality of the town in other ways. After all, we are not building a shrine.

And then came the reminder from someone that high rise costs more.

How much more, as compared with what? This is the kind of information the committee has asked Manager Bowen, and the planning board consultant, to collect in time for a May 31 meeting.

He is to figure in every potential cost. How expensive would it be to replace parking space eliminated if the municipal building were demolished? What will it cost to demolish the present town hall and take properties along Barnard Street if development of this town block is considered? Etc.

Armed with all inclusive data and a pro and con listing for each site, the committee will be prepared to review the practical considerations.

Still to be determined, however, is figuring out what to do with municipal buildings, how much consideration should the town give to putting them where they would contribute to and stimulate renewal?

Dog Warning

Dog owners were warned this week by Safety Officer William Tammany that action can be brought against them if their animal injures a child.

Officer Tammany spoke in reminding townspeople to see that their pets do not follow children to school. He reported that, for example, that there were 10 dogs on the Shawshen School playground last Friday and that Central School also has dog problems.

The person who permits his dog to frequent school yards is risking a law suit if a child is bitten, Tammany said.

It is just as well to be a giddy-pated, if you are to find home on this turning earth.

A Grim Reminder

On this Memorial Day how can we concentrate on anything other than the folly of war? How can we mourn any dead but those who have yet to die?

We cannot enjoy the luxury of a purely reflective observance. We cannot stand in the quiet of a spring-greened cemetery and listen to the steady cadence of drums that beat only for soldiers who died in the battles of half-forgotten wars. We cannot recoil from the shock of the volley, nor weep at the melancholy sound of Taps without thinking of the war, albeit a small war, that makes every day Memorial Day in Vietnam.

United States involvement in this struggle for control of one corner of Southeast Asia is causing fresh debate and renewed concern. Should we escalate the war, expecting that such action will force negotiations? Should we continue to sustain Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, with a view to altering his view about when and how to hold national elections in South Vietnam? Are we prepared (and should we be) to risk a free election in a country where there has been little indication that the majority of the people are sufficiently informed about the benefits of either to make a choice between Democracy and Communism?

While some people have great confidence that they know precisely what America should do about Vietnam, it is probable that Memorial Day will stir the thinking of the great numbers who are not sure that we have been or are right in our approach to stemming the tide of international Communism. For them this national holiday will be a stern reminder of the futility of wars to end all wars.

For such men there was guidance last week in an editorial published by the Christian Science Monitor. Commenting upon the position of the "small (but articulate) minority of the intellectual community . . . which has either opposed the war outright or believed that it knew better than Washington how to fight it . . ." the Monitor said:

"We believe that the President spoke to the point when he told (a) Princeton University audience that America's actions in Vietnam were agonizing, not arrogant. If there is an American who glories in that war, we have yet to find him. But there are moral obligations in this world which cannot be shunned. One, as the President reiterated, is that freedom is indivisible. No matter under what guise it parades, the Communist effort to force its authoritarian control on the people of South Vietnam is repugnant to all sense of decency. It must be stopped. And those intellectuals who support this effort to give others the freedom they themselves enjoy will, in the future, hold their heads the higher because of it."

It is something to ponder as we observe Memorial Day, that grim reminder of the futility of wars to end all wars.

A Certainty

Albert P. Pettoruto of Andover is now Judge Pettoruto of Essex County.

On Monday he was sworn in as a judge of probate and insolvency for the Essex County Probate Court. The ceremony was held in the chamber of the House of Representatives at the State House where for four years Judge Pettoruto has served as a quietly effective representative from the 12th Essex District.

We congratulate him here, publicly, on his appointment to the bench and applaud the Governor's choice of so staunch a man to represent the people in such a sensitive court position.

With a certainty we can predict that Judge Pettoruto will serve with distinction.

What Our Readers Say

Tell It To Mao

To the Editor of the Townsman: Regardless of how many Vietnam study groups, or marchers on Washington there may be, we agree that war is no way to freedom or any other civil rights. In my time there have been wars and rumors of wars. America has done what she had to do in several . . . win them on the battle field and then lose them at the conference table. We have played the big brother and what have we won, apparently nothing but hatred by those whom we shed the blood of hundreds of thousands of our American boys to save from the dictators.

Again, we are in Vietnam, I believe it's to stop communism, but if I am wrong, I hope to be forgiven for being so wrong about communism. I am disgusted with Senators Fulbright & Morse acting as if we were maltreating the communists. In fact they want us to lay down our arms and let the Reds move in take over and all will be Hunky Ducky. All I have to say to these and many others who take the same stand, they are nuts - If they want peace let them go to China and ask them to quit killing our American boys. Its as easy as that. So don't be afraid of your being locked in prison as a spy. It will be for a good cause and then only then will Americans know the truth about who is carrying on the war. So here after let the Vietnam study groups send their delegations to China and insult Mao like they did the President of the United States. None of us like war, and we don't like traitors either.

Idea With Merit

To the Editor of the Townsman: All nice towns have Community Houses. Andover is a nice Town. Andover should have a Community House - a place where the spirit of Andover can meet to relax and to discuss and to greet ones' neighbors - community owned, community controlled.

We need a place where lone-some elderly people can gather, can socialize, can relax.

We need a place where smaller civic organizations (The Veterans, The Clan Johnstons, Garden Clubs and the like) can hold forth for the good of Andover and its progress.

We need a place, preferably on Main Street, where patriotic gatherings on holidays of our Town Fathers can gather to view parades to present distinguished town visitors, and to get acquainted with groups of citizens - informally to get to know their aspirations.

Andover does need such a location, and the Dr. Blake house, if available on Main Street suggests a possibility - with front and rear porches and nominal grounds for relaxing and chatting - with an out building probably large enough, by itself, to house our veterans organizations with a dollar savings to the Town - and a circular driveway for in and out traffic. Or any other appropriate house.

May there not be some merit to this idea?

With the rescheduled take off of Gemini 9 in the offing, a prime attraction for the hundreds of New England school groups on spring outings at Boston's Museum of Science is a recently installed full-scale model of the Gemini spacecraft.

The towering model joins two other full-size space vehicles in the Space Exhibition area. They are a giant Apollo with a viewing window through which visitors can see manikins of the three-man astronaut team in the cabin; and a Mercury capsule, also with a viewing window, showing its single astronaut at the controls. Alongside the attention-getting capsules the school visitors find a series of rocket vehicle models, in scale, ranging from an early Goddard to the mammoth Saturn 5 which will one day project man to the moon.

CAPITOL COMMENT

By CONGRESSMAN
BRAD MORSE

Three events of the past few weeks have concentrated attention on the structure of our present Selective Service System. On Saturday, May 14 more than 400,000 young men took a voluntary exam given by the Selective Service. Exam grades will be one factor taken into consideration by draft boards in determining whether or not these young men will retain their student deferments.

Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, speaking in Montreal on May 18, criticized the present system for drawing on "only a minority of our eligible young men" as an "inequity." He proposed that young people be asked to give two years of service to the nation, whether in the military service or in organizations such as the Peace Corps, or other voluntary work at home or abroad.

Meanwhile, on Capitol Hill new efforts were exerted to promote a thorough investigation of the present system by the House Armed Services Committee. General Lewis Hershey, Director of the Selective Service System is expected to testify before the Committee within the next few weeks. In March, I strongly urged a congressional review of the draft. Beginning this week, a group of my Republican colleagues and I will issue a series of papers in which we try to spell out some of the areas that must be considered in any meaningful legislative inquiry.

The Universal Military Training and Service Act, which authorizes the draft, will come up for renewal in June 1967. It has not been changed significantly since its passage in 1940. In these two and one half decades, the U. S. population as a whole has increased by 26 per cent but the male population of draft age has increased by 95 per cent.

As technology has expanded, the requirements for our military services have become more specialized. Today our armed forces need skilled technicians as well as men on the front lines.

The manpower needs and the quality of the manpower available have changed dramatically. There is a real question whether the original system is adequate to cope with these shifts.

Draft Principles

The four basic principles of our current selective service system are: (1) every young man has an obligation to the military service of his country; (2) the country will require him to fulfill this obligation only if necessary; (3) there are a number of civilian pursuits that justify a waiver of the obligation; and (4) the sole purpose of the draft is to supply qualified men for the armed services. Each of these precepts has recently been called into question.

Secretary McNamara's speech raises the question of whether the basic obligation could be fulfilled through civilian as well as military service.

At present the system is not truly universal in that our nation does not need the services of all the eligible young men to meet our military requirements. This is due to the changed character of our military services and to the increased pool of manpower available.

While no one would quarrel with deferments for such civilian pursuits as the ministry and essential defense industrial positions, and the deferments for fathers, serious questions have been raised about the blanket deferment of students. In one sense, the exam conducted by the Selective Service System is a response to questions about the wisdom of drafting those who lack the means to continue their education and excepting those who do. Examples have been cited of young men drifting from school to school to avoid the draft.

While the fundamental purpose of the draft is to obtain manpower for the services, changed conditions may mean that the draft can serve other special functions of training, and rehabilitation as well.

At the present time we do not have the answer to any of the questions that have been raised about our present Selective Service system, but the import is clear and urgent.

There was quite a heavy frost Monday night in some parts of the town.

Hardy & Cole are building an addition on the rear of the Mansion House, 16 x 20 and three stories high. Proprietor Hitchcock is crowded for room and the addition became a necessity.

Albert Hardy of West Parish, brother of Lewis T. Hardy and Mary E. McKinley were married at Mr. Hardy's home by Rev. F. W. Greene May 21.

Helen Keller's visit to Abbot Academy was an event of unusual interest. Not yet 11 years old, blind, deaf and dumb, she has yet acquired a knowledge and an intelligent appreciation of many subjects often beyond the ken of girls several years older than she, in full possession of their senses. Friday was spent in hearing all we could about Helen from her teacher, Miss Sullivan, and in listening to Helen herself who has recently learned to speak.

James Coates of Morton Street has entered the employ of the Harvard Club in Cambridge.

A party of gypsies going through Andover Saturday were detained by the Andover police who were notified by the Salem police to delay them.

All the bungalows and camps on the Shawheen are occupied or rented for the season.

As usual a large delegation of Ballardvale people will attend the Memorial services in Andover Tuesday.

The several committees of the local Village Improvement Society are doing good work and many results of their efforts are seen. Ballardvale should and will be one of the prettiest Villages in the state.

Sid White Challenges Mgr. Bowen

Selectman Sidney P. White and Manager Richard Bowen clashed Monday in what boiled down to an argument over administrative authority.

The selectman demanded to know who had issued orders that information on water levels etc. should not be given out at the Haggett's Pond pumping station. He said that for many years, particularly when he was a selectman prior to the manager form of government and chairman of the old board of public works, he had enjoyed the privilege of observing operations at the station and comparing statistics on water levels, pumping etc.

Manager Bowen told White the "no information" order had been issued by Water Supt. Donald C. Bassett with his approval. He said it was done to prevent continued misleading use of information about water conditions and was in keeping with a standing rule that information on any town department should come from the department head or the manager.

Manager Bowen said Tuesday that the ruling against information about town business being released by other than department heads or the manager's office stand as is. White complained that he had not found such information readily available, though he admitted he had not asked Bowen for it personally.

In the discussion, the selectman said an employee at the station confided he would not violate Bassett's rule because he feared for his job. When White refused to reveal the name of the man he said made this statement, Bowen snapped "Do you mean you believe a man could lose his job over a thing like this?" White replied, "The employee believes it."

At one turn in the discussion, the selectman said he had always had full access to BPW records in former times. Selectman Philip Allen replied, "Of course you did. This was under another form of government . . . we have an entirely new system now. . . ." Allen told White "you are getting involved in administration." He added that the only way the manager can administer is to have control of the employees under his management.

During the sometimes heated conversation, Selectman White told the manager he disagreed with his judgment on the water situation. The selectman has pushed for a lifting of the water ban since spring.

Permit To Be Sold

A new $7 federal recreation permit will be sold at Massachusetts state forests and parks this season along with the state's own $10 season tickets.

Commissioner of Natural Resources Charles H. W. Foster says the federal permit, known as the "Golden Passport", will admit the purchaser to 7,000 national parks, forests and monuments, and will be valid for an unlimited number of visits from April 1 to March 31, 1967. It will not be valid however, at Massachusetts state outdoor recreation areas.

Foster said Massachusetts is offering the season ticket at the request of the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, Dept. of the Interior

"Besides admitting a carload of people to federal recreation areas, the $7 season ticket will admit the purchaser himself, regardless of how he travels.

Perfect Shade Says USDA

The perfect shade tree? The USDA thinks so. Bradford pear trees are now being planted nationwide as part of the U. S. program of beautification.

The Bradford pear was developed from seed sent back from China by USDA plant explorers. It has been adapted to climate in this country and to city life, is hardy, disease resistant, well shaped and grows to a maximum height of 50 feet. It produces white blossoms in spring, silvery green leaves in summer, and crimson red foliage in the fall. When pollinated, small russet-colored fruit develop in the fall and cling through winter. The fruit is so small that it causes no litter problem, but attracts birds. Stocks should be on hand for fall planting in 15 or more States.

More Metered Parking Proposed After Survey

After its recommendations of a survey of local parking conditions, a major manufacturer of parking meter equipment suggests that Andover about double distribution of metered spaces in the mid-town area.

Its proposals are followed, a nickel meter would be installed on Main Street.

H. Rhodes Inc., manufacturer of the vandalproof meters now used by the City of Boston, says that the town is under-metered and that its parking facilities need to be more equitably distributed.

In its free-of-charge report, Rhodes proposes a "uniform and properly balanced" rate system of three basic metered areas. Area one would include the curb areas on Main Street, downtown. The company suggests a 10 cent per hour and a one hour limit. The nickel would still be good, however, for the purchase of an extra parking time off Main Street in the upper portion of the principal parking lot. A two-hour limit in these locations is proposed.

At the rear of the municipal lot, cars would be permitted to park for 25 cents or at the rate of two-and-one-half cents per hour. This area is presently unmetered.

New Director for GS Camp

Mrs. Edward C. Reynolds, 21 Crest Rd., is the newly named director for Camp Maude Eaton, a day-camp run by the Merrimack River Girl Scout Council for Junior Girl Scouts.

Mrs. Reynolds is the director of health, physical education and recreation for the Greater Lawrence YWCA and holds swimming instructor certificates both from the YWCA and from the American Red Cross. She has been water-skiing director at Camp Merryweather, the Girl Scout day camp in Andover, and has served 3 years as a Girl Scout leader in Junior group 49.

Her experiences with both adults and children in recreational fields will enable her to direct staff and 60 campers for each session, beginning June 26. Leaders telling of the 1966 summer opportunities were called to Girl Scouts of the Council last month. The director is currently in the process of hiring staff members who can assist in crafts, nature, dramatics, outdoor skills, waterfront activities, archery and folk dancing.

Mrs. Reynolds, herself a sports enthusiast, excels in badminton, golf, bowling and swimming.

Leone's has been "discovered" by the brides to be. It was bound to happen . . . there's so much to see in this unique furniture store.

We are unique in many aspects. Primarily it's the depth of what there is to see . . . and it's all so see-able. Secondly, all women rave about our roomy display techniques which simplify visualizing groups and individual pieces in the new home; which permit seeing the furniture from all angles and the area it requires. Finally, the lower prices surprise, too. This is because of our location, out of the high rent areas (yet, so convenient to reach from anywhere) and our high turn-over activity. All this and exclusive, nationally famous furniture, too!

By all means, see Leone's . . . people tell us they like us — we hope you will, too.

decided that all six precincts will be opened for voting in the November primary. The practice of opening all precincts, in the hope of attracting a wider vote, was initiated two years ago.

Specifications for the sale of the town infirmary on Carmel Road have been revised and sealed bids will be taken June 27. The specs now specify that the purchaser will be responsible for submitting subdivision plans for separation of the building lot from other town owned property and for construction of any road necessary as an access to this land.

The town will make its third attempt to sell the old Bradlee School in Ballardvale. Bids will be taken in a public auction June 27. The successful bidder will be required to demolish the building or complete improvements within one year. A certified check or cash in the amount of $5,000 will have to be posted as a performance bond. The town has made two previous attempts to sell the property by competitive bidding.

The Board of Selectmen will hold its June 13 meeting in the newly redecorated Ballardvale Community Center, responding to the invitation of the Vale association.

At some undetermined time the Board of Selectmen will ask local physicians to meet with them to discuss what, if anything, the town can or should do to encourage the general practitioners to locate in Andover. This plan was prompted by a letter from Irene H. McCarthy, welfare department social worker, calling their attention to the fact that only four doctors maintain offices in Andover for the practice of general medicine.

Tires and tools valued at $285 were taken from Ballardvale Service Station sometime between 2 and 5:30 a.m. Friday. A pane of glass was broken to permit the release of the door latch.

The Grand Lodge of Masons has announced extensive alterations to its Masonic Temple headquarters at Tremont and Boylston streets in downtown Boston, costing upwards of $400,000. Among those on the building committee are Walter N. Webster of Andover.

A public hearing will be held September 9, 1966, at the Division of Fisheries and Game field headquarters, Westboro, Mass., at 8 p.m., to set new deer hunting regulations, which would for the most part, restrict killing to three-inch antler deer. The goal of the division is to reverse a current decline in the deer population by limiting harvesting of does so that eventually an annual reported kill of between 4000 and 5000 deer of both sexes might be achieved.

More than thirty gliders and pilot-contestants from all over New England will gather at the Northeastern Gliderport, Salem, N. H. on May 28, 29 and 30 to compete for trophies to be awarded to winners of distance, speed and duration flights. This established annual affair sponsored by the Region One Soaring Association, is the largest glider meet held in the Northeast.

A $1,689,000 grant to help the City of Lowell develop 133 acres in three industrial parks has been approved today by Eugene P. Foley, assistant secretary of Commerce for Economic Development. Funds will come from the Economic Development Administration. The City of Lowell will finance $1,112,600 through general obligation bonds, for a total project cost of $2,801,600.

Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, Secretary of Interior Udall and Sen. Edward Kennedy will be among those on Cape Cod Monday for dedication of the Cape Cod National Seashore.

William J. Dean of University Lane, Manchester, formerly President of the Cape Ann Tool Company at Rockport, has been elected to the board of corporation of Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries of Boston. Born in Rockport, he is a graduate of Phillips Academy and attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Symphonics Inc., manufacturer of tape recording, hi-fi and television equipment will shift its operation from Lowell to Lawrence. The company is to build a plant and warehouse in the Lawrence industrial Park near the Andover line on River Road. Construction of a 150,000 sq. ft. warehouse will begin immediately. A 250,000 sq. ft. manufacturing plant will occupy the balance of the parcel purchased.

The Selectmen this week gave operators of the Foster gravel pit until June 1 to meet all town requirements after the owner reported that he had not fully understood the regulations. Chairman William Stewart opposed further extensions on the permit, stating that the Foster pit had caused the town more trouble than any other operated in Andover. He accepted the June 1 deadline, however, after the rest of the board agreed that a cease and desist order would be ordered on June 1 if all stipulated corrections to grading, loaming etc. had not been made.

New York Consultant Will Address Chamber

JOHN C. BURDIS

John Calbreath Burdis founder and officer of Burdis Associates Planning Consultants of New York City will be the speaker at the Andover Chamber of Commerce fourth annual dinner, Wednesday, June 8, at the Sheraton Rolling Green Motor Inn.

Paul J. McVey, annual dinner chairman said, "We were fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Burdis for our dinner. Of the many speakers available on the East Coast to talk on the topic of community development and community planning the demand is greatest for Mr. Burdis."

Burdis recently was speaker for the Greater Lowell Chamber of Commerce annual dinner and addressed a New England Conference of chamber officials on community development at Chicopee, Mass. this past Spring.

Burdis was educated as an architect with graduate work in city planning and landscape design at King College, Durham University, England. He also attended MIT in Cambridge and has been associated with the following schools either as associate professor or visiting lecturer: Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, New York State University, Columbia University and University of Oklahoma.

Burdis approaches community planning from an aesthetic viewpoint, but at the same time delivers many practical ideas and modern-day philosophies using slides he has gathered from around the country. His wit and cynicism comes through in a charming way in the narration he presents. As McVey stated, "He sugarcoats the bitter message with his humor and wit."

The Andover Chamber will celebrate the fourth anniversary of the affiliation as a division of the Greater Lawrence Chamber at the dinner. The social hour will begin at 6 p.m. and dinner will start promptly at 7 p.m. Reservations are being accepted at the Greater Lawrence Chamber of Commerce office and by any of the Andover Chamber of Commerce directors.

Paul Cronin Is Honored

Former Andover Selectman Paul W. Cronin was one of six Massachusetts residents cited last week for "Good Citizenship" in a national competition sponsored by a leading U. S. life insurance company.

In announcing the award, Howard Phillips, a local agent for Mutual Trust Life Insurance Co. said: "Paul Cronin was selected on the basis of his active civic participation and his dedication to helping others, as evidenced by the leading roles he has assumed in numerous charitable and public service endeavors."

The awards are made on the basis of agent's recommendations from among policy holders.

Cronin, who in 1965 was cited by the Andover Junior Chamber of Commerce as an "Outstanding Young Man", is administrative assistant to Congressman F. Bradford Morse. Married, with two children, he serves on the board of trustees of the Massachusetts Multiple Sclerosis Society and has directed fund drives for other charitable organizations in Essex and Middlesex counties. A graduate of Boston University, the award winner is on leave of absence from the firm of Edgerton, Gerneshausen, & Grier, where he served as director of corporate relations.

Judge Paul J. Perocchi, chairman of the U. S. Postmaster General's advisory committee and a special justice for the Lawrence District Court, will be the keynote speaker for the Memorial Day service at Andover Junior High School Monday.

The special justice intends to include some criticism of the placard carrying "beatniks" who oppose U.S. involvement in Vietnam in his remarks at the observance honoring the dead of all American wars.

Introducing the judge will be William Stewart, chairman of the Andover Board of Selectmen. Stewart is to be introduced by Commander Benjamin Brown, American Legion Post 8.

A wreath will be placed beneath the dedicatory plaque at Memorial Auditorium by Commander Cecil Garrod of Post 2128, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Mrs. Garrod, president of the VFW auxiliary.

Andover High School students Thomas Nigrelli and Nancy Hickey will give readings of the Gettysburg Address and "In Flanders Field."

Others participating in the auditorium program will be Mrs. Michael Brennan, soloist, the Andover High School Bands, Rev. Frederick B. Noss of South Church, the Lawrence City Band, and Rev. James A. WenzelOSA of St. Augustine's Church.

The Parade
The traditional Memorial Day Parade will begin at 9:30 a.m. Monday, leaving from the super market parking lot on Park Street. Marchers are to assemble no later than 9:15 a.m.

In the line up will be town officials, members of veterans' organizations, a number of musical groups, Gold Star Mothers, a detachment from Fort Devens, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and 4-H Club members.

The parade will proceed out Florence Street, down Elm to Main south on Main Street to Chestnut and from here to Memorial Auditorium for the main service of the day.

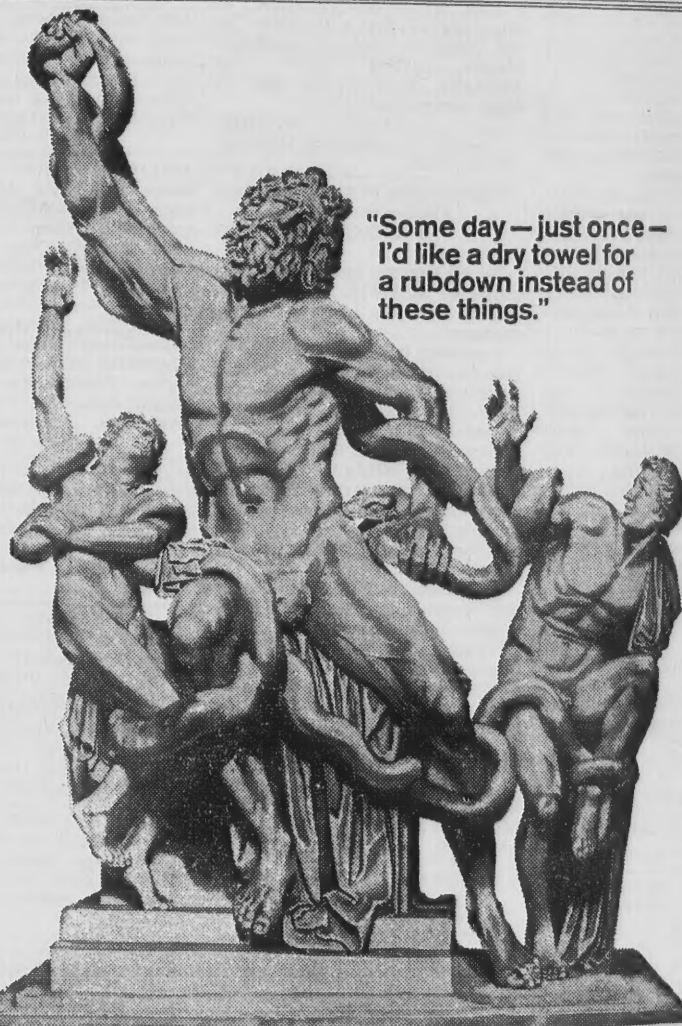

From here the march will proceed to Bartlet Street, out Pumphard to Main and south on Main to the Phillips Academy Memorial Towers where Academy officials will conduct a brief service in cooperation with the VFW, American Legion and DAV. The parade will then move down School Street, onto Central and disband at the Baptist Church.

Earlier in the day, four other traditional memorials will be held as follows: 7:30 a.m. at the American Legion Lot, Spring Grove Cemetery; 7:50 a.m., GAR Lot, Spring Grove Cemetery; 8:15 a.m., South Church Cemetery; and 8:30 a.m. outside Memorial Hall Library.

Following the parade the VFW will conduct short services at West Parish Cemetery and St. Augustine's Cemetery.

Members of veterans' organizations will participate in a combined Memorial Sunday Service on the 29th at South Church. Those participating are to meet at 9:45 a.m. at Legion Hall on Park Street to proceed as a group to the church for the 10:30 a.m. service. Rev. Frederick B. Noss will officiate.

Dr. Gordon J. Johnston of Sanford, Maine, assistant professor of biology at Nasson College has been appointed to the Maine-New Hampshire bi-state committee on oceanography. Johnston is the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur K. Jenkins, Ballardvale Rd.

"Some day — just once — I'd like a dry towel for a rubdown instead of these things."

dry clothes faster and fluffier with Gas for 1/3 the cost

You've got to admit, a dry towel is a lot warmer.

And things dry a lot faster with a Gas Dryer. It's the fastest, fluffiest way there is to dry your laundry. Least expensive, too. With Gas you dry your clothes for 3¢ (not 9¢) a load.

No scorching. No rough treatment. Your clothes come out sunshiny fresh every time. Think about it a while — the idea grows on you.

Norge Automatic Gas Dryer

Exclusive four-ways-to-dry design, including stationary rack for footwear and other wet things. $189.50, installed. As little as $1.47 a week.
